

Tariff Dispute Grips Revenue Bill

Parisgrafs
LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

The incoming new city administration is going to have full sway to carry out its platform. Not one of the old council is left—all new, from mayor on down. And the voice was a loud one—a record vote in more ways than one—a record in number and T. J. Record for mayor.

Before entering upon any discussion of the new city council it is in order to say that The News in the future as in the past, will lend its co-operation, reserving however the privilege of disagreeing with public officials when judgment dictates. But The News really wants to co-operate in order that Paris may go forward and in order that maximum value may be given the taxpayers at a minimum cost. So, The News congratulates Mayor-Elect Record and the other members of the city's new official family.

The candidates elected were those who advocated lowering taxes and who stood for strict economy in city governmental affairs. This does not mean, of course, that the new officials will hamper the future of Paris by too stringent a program of economy.

Among the other planks in Mr. Record's platform were the pledges to reduce salaries, except on labor; out the watermeter rent, issue and publish regularly a statement of the city's financial condition. Improve dirt streets and keep others in good repair. He will, he said, as quickly as possible, reduce taxes. He made this pledge effective prior to the election by publishing the statement "If I am elected mayor I will put into effect every proposition contained in my platform."

The News is not unmindful of time, effort and thought given to municipal affairs by our outgoing mayor and councilmen and feels that the people appreciate these men. But in their determination to lower the cost of government the voice of the voters cannot be accepted as anything else but an expression of this desire.

Other candidates besides Mr. Record were outspoken in pledging economy. Alderman-at-large R. R. Baker was especially outspoken on the subject, carrying on his electioneering cards the pledge to "cut out all dead-wood, cut out charges for water meters, cut the mayor's salary in half, cut aldermen's salaries in half and reduce taxes by cutting the overhead." It might be said here also that Mr. Record favored practically the same measures of economy.

The never-before-heard-of-interest in a Paris city election, as evidenced by the casting of only fifty-five votes short of four thousand, is a good omen. Unquestionably it shows a healthy interest in our municipal affairs. But it must be remembered that the citizen's responsibility does not end with the mere casting of a ballot. The measure of success achieved by the new officials will, of necessity, be governed to a great extent by the spirit of co-operation shown by the citizenship.

The people will watch with eager interest the operation of the city's affairs under the direction of the incoming administration, but it will be necessary to guard against expecting too much in too short a length of time. All of the foregoing is said with no reflection upon those good men who have served Paris well in the past.

Attorney General Allred Removes Self From Ranks Of Gubernatorial Timber

AUSTIN, April 6. (AP)—James V. Allred, attorney general of Texas Wednesday removed himself from consideration as a probable candidate for governor this year. In a statement to the press he said he trusted the people would see fit to return him to his present office.

In his statement Wednesday, he said he had "been too busy trying to interpret and enforce the law to even think of politics, and regret that unfounded speculation has drawn my name into the race."

General M. J. Bonner of Fort Worth, commander of the Texas Division of the United Confederate Veterans, will arrive Thursday to be the guest of Miss Florence Rose selected as his maid of honor for the state and national conventions, and will remain over Friday to be the principal speaker at the luncheon given by Lamar chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the Paris Golf Club.

Members of the Albert Sidney Johnston camp No. 70, U. C. V., will be guests at the luncheon, as a compliment to General Bonner.

The luncheon hour is 12:30 o'clock, and hostesses for the occasion will be Meses. E. L. Billingsley, T. C. Geron, A. F. Hilliard, E. B. Baker, George Estes and John G. Wright and Miss Rose. Mrs. C. M. Reavis will conduct the program. A short meeting of the executive board will precede the luncheon.

Miss Rose, daughter of the late S. C. Rose, has several times been chosen by the commanders of different groups of the U. C. V. to serve on their official staffs, and she was recently notified by General Bonner of this latest appointment as his official maid of honor. She will accompany him to the national convention at Richmond, Va., in June and to the Texas state convention in the fall.

Other candidates besides Mr. Record were outspoken in pledging economy. Alderman-at-large R. R. ECONOMY WAR OF ADMINISTRATION AND DEMS RAGES

New Intensity Accompanied By Call For Specific Recommendations

WASHINGTON, April 6. (AP)—The economy war between the administration and congressional Democrats raged with increased intensity Wednesday accompanied by another call for the president to make specific recommendations for money saving and a $12,000,000 slash in the interior department appropriation bill.

The special economy committee created by the Democratic house addressed a letter to the president asserting: "The condition of the country not only precludes partisan politics but demands political cooperation." The communication asked him for definite proposals for saving money by the consolidation or elimination of governmental agencies.

Acting under orders from the senate—expressed in a resolution sponsored by McKellar of Tennessee, a Democrat—the senate appropriations committee reduced the total of the interior department measure from $57,000,000 to $45,000,000 and reported it out for action.

Ever Drink Out of an Inner Tube?

Probably not. But customs officials at Laredo, Texas have discovered that gallons of high priced liquors are being brought into the United States in the tires of automobiles. Ingenious? Here's how it's done: The inner tubes are carefully cleaned and liquor forced into them with a copper tire pump submerged in a receptacle full with fire water. Officials believe this clever ruse was first devised by Mexican boy who used bicycle tires. Below is a customs official examining one of the confiscated tires. And you'd be surprised how much liquor a set of five balloon tires can hold.

Wave Of Optimism Sweeps Area Of Lindbergh Home; "Fresh Contact" Described

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 6. (AP)—A description of a fresh "contact" with kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby reached here Wednesday as an unexplained wave of optimism for the child's safe return enveloped the Sourland countryside.

Back home from a mysterious four-day airplane trip, John Hughes Curtis, one of three Norfolk, Va., intermediaries, told briefly of establishing the new contact and said he had been informed the baby was well.

Significance was added to his announcement by a statement he also had seen Col. Charles A. Lindbergh while away.

This for the first time connected the activities of the Virginia trip with the two unexplained trips made early this week by the famous flier.

On both occasions—Sunday and Monday—Lindbergh was reported seen in a plane near Martha's Vineyard, Mass., the former day in company with three unidentified men.

Upon his return to Norfolk in a navy plane Curtis went into conferences with his two associates, Dean H. Dobson Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired.

Then he issued the following statement to waiting reporters: "Gentlemen: On my trip I made contact, was informed by my contact that the child was well, saw Colonel Lindbergh personally, but am not at liberty to say where. I regret my inability to say more at this time."

Bruised Knuckles, Black Eyes Give Evidence of Seriousness of Issue

NEW YORK, April 6. (AP)—Bruised knuckles and blackened eyes were evidence Wednesday night of the seriousness with which Columbia University students went about their efforts to obtain—and oppose—the reinstatement of Reed Harris, expelled editor of the Spectator, student publication.

Several women students were hurt slightly late in the day in a pitched battle between striking and non-striking students directly beneath the window of President Nicholas Murray Butler's office. Tear gas had been used earlier in a melee on the library steps where numerous strikers had made idealistic speeches.

Harris, whose editorials charged among other things professionalism on the football team, was absent from the campus which resumed its normal quiet after 3 p. m. Strike leaders said the one-day demonstration was 75 per cent effective.

Vociferous partisans of Harris who attempted to "rag" the large and gilded statue of Alma Mater in front of the library caused a near riot as they flaunted a 15-foot strip of black crepe before the group they loudly dubbed "the athletic crowd."

Darrow Picks Cautiously Over Jury Prospects; Use Of Challenges Ousts Many

HONOLULU, April 6. (AP)—Racial cross currents flowed through the jury box here Wednesday as opposing counsel sought to divert them to their own advantage in choosing a jury to try Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai.

One after another Anglo-Saxon, Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiian, and Portuguese passed in and out of the box as Clarence Darrow, and John C. Kelley fought a cautious battle.

The prosecution, led by Kelley, favored those of Oriental extraction. The defense, directed by Darrow, famous Chicago attorney, inclined toward those of Nordic blood.

Three times Kelley used peremptory challenges to remove without cause Anglo-Saxons who had been drawn, and Darrow likewise struck off Hawaiians and Orientals.

When the session ended there were three Americans, two Hawaiians, one Swede, one Portuguese, one Chinese-Hawaiian, a German, two Chinese and one Scotsman in the box. Each side had used eight of its peremptory challenges.

PLEAS DENIED IN TEXAS U. SUIT TO GET OIL FUNDS

LOYD GEORGE REPORTED READY TO END CAREER

State Seeking Recovery of $575,000 Allegedly Due to University

Only Events of Outstanding Importance Would Recall War Minister

AUSTIN, Tex., April 6. (AP)—Pleas of privilege entered by the Continental Oil company and the Reagan County Purchasing company in the state's suit to recover $575,000 alleged to be due the University of Texas in oil royalties were overruled by Judge J. D. Moore of Travis county district court, Wednesday.

Those defendants claimed that the case should be tried in Tarrant county, where they, foreign corporations, maintain Texas offices. The state contended the suit was properly brought in Travis county because the law requires royalties to be paid there.

Judge Moore set May 23 to hear argument on pleas of abatement entered by the Humble Oil and Refining company and the Reagan County Purchasing company. They claim they were improperly joined in the suit.

The suit was based on a contract providing that oil produced on university lands by the Big Lake company and the Texon companies would be purchased by the Reagan County Purchasing company at a "fair market price" for mid-continent oil, the price to be determined by averaging the posted prices of five major mid-continent purchasing companies.

LONDON, April 6. (AP)—David Lloyd George, one of Britain's greatest political figures of all time, was reported Wednesday night to have decided on his virtual retirement from the House of Commons.

Only events of outstanding importance, said those close to him, would bring the noted Welsh Liberal and wartime minister back to the scene of past triumphs.

Lloyd George, who in his galvanic person during the war symbolized for many the British "will to win" and whose oratory awaked the benches of Commons as had that of few men, will devote himself in the future to writing and farming his friends said.

The once great Liberal party which he led is divided into two main sections and various subdivisions, none of which has shown any special eagerness to rally to the banner of its former chief.

There obviously is no place for him in the national government of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, which he has attacked with the utmost vigor. A suggestion he cooperate with the labor opposition seems to have met with no enthusiasm on either side.

Suspended Sentences Are Order Of Day As Juries Clean Up Criminal Docket

Handing out suspended sentences with untiring energy, juries of the 6th District court Wednesday swept clean Judge George P. Blackburn's criminal docket for the week following a deluge of pleas of guilty entered by the defendants.

Only four "Sent Up" defendants tried during the week received straight sentences in the penitentiary. All four of the defendants pleaded guilty but only one defendant, Tony Ross, waived trial by jury. Charged with forgery in five cases, Ross pleaded guilty, threw himself on the mercy of the court and received two years sentence in the penitentiary in each of five cases.

The other three defendants assessed straight sentences in "the penitentiary" were negroes charged with burglary, selling liquor, forgery and passing a forged instrument. Jurors assessed four years sentence in the burglary case, one year each in two cases charging selling liquor, and two years each in the forgery and forgery and passing forged instrument cases.

Two negroes—Archie Griffee, charged with forgery, and Ramon Lambert, charged with transporting liquor—were assessed five and two years suspended sentences respectively.

Six of the remaining defendants received suspended sentences on pleas of guilty while one defendant (Continued on Page Seven)

Parks Murderer Gets Life Term

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex., April 6. (AP)—William H. Bybee of Pampa was convicted Wednesday for the alleged murder of deputy constable Ollie Parks in a disturbance at a dance hall here the night of March 16.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Parks had gone to the dance hall on complaint that a man there had dropped a pistol on the floor. He asked the man to hand over the weapon and the shooting resulted.

MOTION TO ADD NEW DUTIES ON IMPORTS UPHELD

Dems Start Move to Keep Tariff Levies Out of Measure

NEW DUTIES ON OIL AND COAL PROVIDED

Secretary Mills Asks Elimination of "Punitive Business Taxes"

WASHINGTON, April 6. (AP)—A tariff dispute gripped the billion-dollar tax bill Wednesday night as the senate finance committee concluded its first session of hearings on that momentous measure.

After receiving a declaration of administration policy from Secretary Mills, the committee rejected, by 10 to 5, a motion that additional import duties be excluded from the bill.

Dems Start Move
Immediately two democrats, Walsh of Massachusetts and Tydings of Maryland, instituted a movement on the floor of the senate to keep further tariff levies out of the measure. They claimed success was in sight.

As approval by the house, the bill calls for new import duties on oil and coal. Others are pending. Senator Gore (D., Okla.), was the author of the motion rejected by the committee.

Mr. Mills in the course of an all day's exposition of the treasury's attitude on the tax bill called for the elimination of what he termed "punitive business taxes" put into the measure on the house floor. He pointed to levies on gasoline, electricity and gas, and checks and drafts as illustrations of the levies he had in mind.

Refuses Requests
He refused flatly the requests of democratic members to take a position for or against the tariff imposts in the revenue bill.

The treasury head offered the committee full support on the revenue bill and a spirit of bipartisan cooperation was evident.

In contrast, however, the war between President Hoover and congressional democrats over ways of making a $200,000,000 cut in expenses gained new fury as democrats assailed the president from the floor and demanded a bill of particulars from him.

Harrison of Mississippi led the democratic assault upon Mr. Hoover, accusing him of "playing politics" with economy in his proposal for a congressional commission to work with him in government reorganization. Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), offered a resolution calling for a definite economy program from the White House.

Mills Responds
Mr. Mills in response to questions declared the treasury would not recommend a revival of the sales tax so decisively rejected by the house and his statement appeared to end this proposition.

The secretary startled the committee with an unequivocal declaration for the federal estate or inheritance tax as a permanent taxing proposition, abandoning the campaign of his predecessor, Andrew W. Mellon, for repeal of this duty.

However, in the most vigorous declaration of the day he condemned the 45 per cent maximum inheritance rate voted by the house as "destructive of working capital." He advocated a 25 per cent maximum.

Balance "Imperative"
He declared it "imperative" that the government balance its budget next year. He congratulated the house for standing by this principle and said the action was necessary to leave unimpaired the public credit which has been placed behind the private credit of the nation in the emergency.

Specifically, Mr. Mills called for elimination from the house bill of the increased rate imposed on consolidated returns by corporations, and of the tax placed on stock dividends and of the ban against allowances for net loss deductions.

He did not specifically oppose the levies on stock and bond transfers fought by the New York stock exchange, but he did declare the stock rate excessive and he discounted the value of the bond tax.

FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING WILL BE AT HIGH SCHOOL

Pupils Rally Held In Con- junction With Teachers Meeting

The fourth annual county-wide seventh grade rally will be held here Saturday April 9, in conjunction with the April teachers meeting. Pupils of the sixth grade from many of the schools of the county will be guests of the seventh grade at the rally.

There are two annual meetings of the county seventh grade pupils of Lamar county, the rally and the county-wide graduation exercises. About 275 seventh grade pupils are expected at each of these meetings.

There will probably be 500 students at the meeting Saturday, including sixth graders.

At the meeting Saturday, the students will assemble in the freshman hall at Paris high school for their program.

At the Lamar

Hollywood "extras" are blouse participants of big, showy and fashionable "party" scenes, but old-fashioned barn dances are something else again.

The biggest barn dance given in Hollywood for years, with good edible (not prop) food and excellent pay for all "guests," figured in "Way Back Home" Saturday. The star vehicle which comes to the Lamar Theatre tonight and tomorrow.

Seth of radio fame, was official host, but of course the real hospitality came from William A. Selter, director. The scenes were made at night and 84 extra players with Seth's supporting cast of radio and screen celebrities, a rustic 8-piece orchestra, a special male quartette and a feminine trio participated.

Instead of lasting one night, as barn dances usually do, the movie affair seen in the picture held forth for two nights. "Guests" arrived on the scene at 7 p. m., and the "party" broke up each night around 2 a. m., as any barn dance should.

"Guests" arrived in private auto, tomobiles and big sight-seeing auto buses, but not an automobile motor was allowed to disturb the melody of the frogs, tree-toads and crickets when actual filming began. So the extras had to make a second arrival, as it were, inside the limits of the farm itself, where they were transferred to wagons, buggies, "foot and horseback."

Beside Seth and his five radio celebrities, who, like himself, make their debut in pictures in "Way Back Home" such well-known movie players as Frank Albertson, Betty Davis, Dorothy Peterson, Stanley Fields, Oscar Apfel and Frankie Darro participated in big rustic "whoops."

Billie Dove, now appearing in her second Howard Hughes' production "Cock of the Air" playing today and tomorrow Grand Theatre, is a real flying enthusiast. In fact, she owns and flies her own plane and is a candidate for a U. S. pilot's license.

In "Cock of the Air" Miss Dove was given an opportunity to indulge her favorite hobby, as there are a number of thrilling air scenes in this United Artists picture in which she participates. Studio officials at first insisted that a double perform for her in the hazardous flying scenes, but finally relented, and the star herself appears in many of the dangerous air shots in the picture.

"Cock of the Air" is a spectacular comedy with Chester Morris in the title role. The cast also includes Matt Moore, Yola D'Avril, Walter Catlett, Vivien Oakland and Louis Alberni.

Information of Ex-Texan Sought

Mrs. Annie Segars of Winder, Ga., wants information about a man she describes as "J. L. Bullock, a large dark-skinned man, aged 35, who had lived out west for several years."

The request came in a letter to "Chief of Police, Paris", and City Marshall Cothran asks The News to print the inquiry so that if any readers knew Mr. Bullock the information may be given The News. She states in the letter that the man killed himself in Atlanta a few days ago, and she would like to have information of his movements for the last 25 or 30 years. She was "under the impression that he was worrying over something other than being out of work."

There was nothing in the letter to indicate that the man had spent part of his out-west residence in Paris, and Marshall Cothran has no knowledge of such a man.

"Nerves" NERVES

Dr. Miles' NERVINE "Did the work" says Miss Glivar

WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?

After more than three months of suffering from a nervous ailment, Miss Glivar used Dr. Miles' Nerve which gave her such splendid results that she wrote us an enthusiastic letter.

If you suffer from "Nerves," if you lie awake nights, start at sudden noises, tire easily, are cranky, blue and fidgety, your nerves are probably out of order.

Quiet and relax them with the same medicine that "did the work" for this Colorado girl.

Whether your "Nerves" have troubled you for hours or for years, you'll find this time-tested remedy effective.

At Drug Stores 25c and $1.00.

DR. MILES' NERVINE

● INTRODUCED FIRST BY GOODYEAR to aviation close to three years ago, these big, buoyant, soft-rolling rubber cushions set new standards of safety. They made smooth, gentle landings on plowed ground, swamp land, sand or snow where planes never dared to land before. They took the threat out of tricky cross-wind landings by absorbing side-sway. They gave new softness to landings and take-offs at express train speed. They put new power in brakes. Now Goodyear pioneers these super-soft tires for cars.

HERE is bad news for bumpy roads. Here is a tire that rolls over them as nonchalantly as if they were million dollar highways.

Its name is Goodyear Airwheel, and it's so downright handsome that a lot of people will want a set of these tires just for the style and swank they can add to cars.

But that's only chapter 1, page 1, in the story of what they mean to motoring.

Because they flow over bumps on twelve to sixteen pounds of air, they save you and your car from the jolts you get even from average balloons.

Because they absorb side-swing and take up side-sway, you'll find that they take curves with new security.

Because they put more of the All-Weather Tread against the road, they make the world's best-known safety tread safer than ever.

Because they're light-running and easy-rolling, they need no more gasoline than any other tires, and they make no difference in speed or steering.

Because they've been fully tested on the world's greatest test fleet, we can tell you that they matched the top mileage of balloon tires on test cars run on day-and-night schedules.

Here's the kind of tire that is waiting for you now at your Goodyear dealer's. He can show you five sizes. The biggest, softest, most spectacular is the 9.00-13. But the one which most people are likely to buy is the 6.50-16, because it delivers the luxurious comfort of the Airwheel at closer the price of conventional tires—and in between are the 7.00-16, 7.50-15 and 8.25-15 sizes.

WHY BUY A SECOND-CHOICE TIRE WHEN FIRST-CHOICE COSTS NO MORE?

A Message to Wives About Finicky Husbands and Coffee

Here's Why Changing the Brand of Coffee You Use Has Not Made the Coffee You Serve Any Better

If you've changed your brand of coffee and your way of making it a dozen times without success, don't give up. There's a simple way to get the kind of coffee you want. In spite of all the different "brands" you've tried, you have probably been getting the same kind of coffee all along. Almost 70 per cent of all coffee sold in stores is this one common kind. It's all grown in one producing country, though it's put up in countless packages. Do you wonder that you get the same flavor in all those different brands? There's only one way to get a real change. Use coffee that comes from a different producing country. Any coffee expert will tell you this.

Rare Mountain Coffee
The world's choicest flavored coffee, as any expert will tell you, come from a few tiny districts. They are grown chiefly along the West Coast of Central America. From this famous region we procure coffee with a rare tang and rich mellow body, utterly unlike any coffee you have ever used before.

Is kept fresh from the roaster right to your coffee pot by the latest type of key-opening vacuum sealed tins. If you want a real change—in coffee—and not merely in name, try it.

A 3-Day Test of Flavor

Just go to your grocer and buy a pound of Folger's. Drink it tomorrow morning. Next morning serve the coffee you have been using. The third morning serve Folger's again. Then choose between them.

If for any reason you decide against Folger's, your grocer will refund your money. We'll pay him. That's fair, isn't it? FOLGER'S COFFEE COMPANY

Special to The News
SNYDER, April 6.—When the long journey of the Santa Fe Texas A. and M. college farm and home special train, begun at Navasota February 15 came to an end here Wednesday afternoon this agricultural and home making school on wheels had played host to a total of 124,725 persons in its 152 stops.

The total attendance attracted by a similar train operated in 1928 was 111,600. The average count per station this year was 821. Caldwell hung up the largest attendance record of the entire trip with a crowd of 2,076. Brenham was second with 1,877. Brownfield third with 1,601. Santa Anna fourth with 1,554 and Carthage fifth with 1,513. At the 77 stops on the Gulf Colorado and Santa Fe line, 65,985 persons visited the train for an average of 857 per station, according to L. F. Dinan of Galveston, agricultural agent for that line. J. D. Tinsley of Amarillo general agricultural agent for the Panhandle and Santa Fe reported an average attendance of 799 per station at the 75 stops on his line for a total of 58,739.

"This is the best farm train ever sponsored by any state agricultural college," declared J. F. Jarrell of Topeka, Kansas, manager of agricultural development for the Santa Fe system in addressing 659 persons assembled here Wednesday afternoon. He has directed 47 agricultural trains in 13 of the 12 Santa Fe states since 1910 when he left newspaper work to supervise agricultural development along the railroad lines.

Continuing Mr. Jarrell said "This train has had more persons in attendance than any other similar train operated in the United States and has drawn the highest percentage of farmers in its crowds than any we have sponsored. I share with many others the opinion that the interest shown by Texas people in the lessons taught in these college exhibits has exceeded that displayed at any educational train of this nature."

Speaking for Texas A. and M. college, H. H. Williamson, vice director and state agent of the extension service said, "We are indebted to the Santa Fe for the opportunity afforded us by this train to carry the message of A. and M. direct to nearly 125,000 Texans who studied the exhibits and questioned the specialists. The train has been a means of popularizing the short cuts to low cost of production to balanced farming and to making each farm a self sustaining unit that 100,000 farmers, farm women and club boys and girls are demonstrating with the help of county and home demonstration agents in nearly 200 counties. Texas A. and M. college appreciates the wide spread interest taken in this program brought to the attention of the state through the assistance of the railroad, the

Rodgers-Wade Thursday To Begin Celebration Of Its Seventy-Sixth Anniversary

W. C. CLARK, President

T. B. REVELLE, Vice-Pres.

The Rodgers-Wade Furniture Co., of Paris, one of the oldest, an done of the outstanding business concerns of the southwest, begins Thursday the celebration of its Seventy-sixth Anniversary.

For several weeks extensive plans have been under way for this celebration which includes an anniversary sale of greater proportion than any previous merchandising effort in the entire history of the firm. Some idea of the extent of the advertising may be gained from the fact that the company has had reprints completed from its eight, solid pages of home-furnishing advertising. This advertising has been appearing in The Paris Morning News for the past several days.

The importance of the firm to Paris and to the state of Texas is enhanced from the fact that they have, in addition to their great retail store, one of the leading furniture factories of the southwest. This big Paris industry, though many years has furnished a handsome payroll to its employees. W. C. Clark is president and

LOST A MILLION

OVER a period of ten or twelve years a North Texas onion has striven earnestly to get away from the old one-crop idea. One section of this county turned to onions and year in and year out they had their troubles. Some years they got a fair price, other years they had to give them away. "The law of supply and demand," that over-worked saw applied to the farmers too often, was given for the bad market years. But these Collin county farmers did not give up. Some were trying dairying and were having much the same trouble. One even started raising garlic, all meeting practically the same market problems and are meeting them today.

But the other day an expert gave a little ray of hope on Collin county's onion industry. He came down to Texas last year, took some of the North Texas onions for which he paid seventy-five cents per crate. That was at a time when South Texas onions were yet plentiful and farmers were again told about the "supply and demand" and six bits a crate was all they could get. But the smart business man took the onions to Kansas City, put them in cold storage and sold them last fall at five dollars per crate, wholesale, according to his own statement. The Collin county crop brought a quarter of a million dollars and the storage man said at the price he got for the onions the crop would have brought a million and a quarter dollars. "Orderly marketing," said the storage man, would henceforth be possible for these onion growers as his firm is putting in a cold storage plant in Texas that will take care of the North Texas onion crop. It sounds reasonable and will, no doubt turn out to be true.

This making of "orderly marketing" may even mean something to our neighboring farmers in Fannin county who are going in for onions this year. It may mean something to the few in Lamar and other counties in this section who raise a few onions and who would raise more if they had any assurance that a decent price could be secured for them.

Certainly no one denies the reasonableness of the old law of "supply and demand" but there is no denying that MARKETING is one of the great problems of the farmer. Cotton, at the crest of the sea, soon dropped down last fall on a glutted market to around four cents. Recently it has brought seven cents and better. Would more orderly marketing and a bit of co-operation have helped the price of cotton? Certainly!

Eggs are selling right now at lower prices than for many years. Poultrymen have been getting seven and eight cents a dozen. The market is flooded. Will eggs sell at a dime a dozen all the year? Certainly not. Smart business men will store the eggs and will get a nice profit, or at least this all-ways has been done.

The old problem of marketing will face the truck and tomato growers. Farmers are willing to raise these products but they have little assurance of a profitable market. However, this one crop does look a little brighter this year, due to loss of the crop further south this season. But the marketing problem has through the years past discouraged our farmers in their desire to diversify.

What is the remedy? The News has contended and will continue to contend that it is time for business men to get their heads together with the farmers and help solve this marketing problem. Form co-operative associations to sell intelligently and orderly; control as nearly as possible production to be more nearly in keeping with the demand, improve the quality and apply some salesmanship to farm products, the same as the farm machinery man, the clothing manufacturer, the automobile makers and other use. Most anybody can produce, but the big job is to sell at a profit.

One community in Collin county lost a million dollars in one season, because there was no means of orderly marketing. Other millions were lost on other crops in Collin, Lamar and many other Texas counties.

Prior to 1929, before the marketing act was passed by congress, co-operative marketing associations in the United States were selling two billion dollars worth of products annually. There is something to co-operative marketing.

ALL OF US

By Marshall Maslin

HAPPIEST MAN I SAW KEEPING PEACE IN THE FAMILY "IF SOMEONE HAD TOLD ME—"

HAPPIEST MAN I ever saw was a man who had just been released from prison. I was on a road that led to a penitentiary, and I saw, coming my way, a very big and very black negro.

He was singing as he walked and he waved his hands joyously and showed his beautiful white teeth to us. Never was a happier mortal than he. He had been locked away, but now he was free.

For him nothing else counted, nothing but the carefree and sunny moment in which he moved.

Marshall Maslin

Once salesmen used to come our way and sell us lightning rods for our homes, to keep us safe in the terrible storms.

I have been told that those lightning rods were useless and never kept lightning from striking homes. But they did keep people from worrying, and they added that much happiness to their lives.

If you knew a happy man who had a useless rod on his house or a hope in his heart would you take either away from him?

We played Jackstraws when we were children. The idea, you remember, was to pick one small bit of wood from the tangled pile without moving any other piece in the slightest.

When we try to reform our friends we are playing Jackstraws. The quality in our friends that we do not like is very often merely the reverse side of the quality we love. Stubbornness is sometimes firmness of character slightly spoiled; recklessness is untrained bravery. So it goes.

Think deeply before you plan alterations in your friend. Will you like him more—or less—after he suits your specifications?

In some homes the best endeavors are given toward Keeping Peace in the Family.

In such homes it is never the best member who dominates. It is always merely, the fiercest.

Once, driving suddenly round a turn in a pitch-black night, I disturbed a coyote. Startled, he floated easily off the road and over a low rail fence. He did not run, he drifted, without fear, without panic endeavor.

And though I do not know why, and though he has long passed beyond reach of poison or hunter, I remember that little animal still—and I still keep that memory with me as something wholly beautiful.

I heard someone say, mournfully, pathetically: "If only someone had told me—"

I didn't hear the rest of the sentence or what it was that someone should have told, but I do know that nearly all of us think that everything would have been different if someone at some time had only told us something we should have known.

But I don't believe it would have made the slightest difference, after all. Because our lives do not hang on other people's sayings, but on some strong peg within our selves.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

THE Tri-State Medical Journal recently had a story, in connection with the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Bowie County medical society and made the error of confusing the late Dr. J. M. Fort with his father, Dr. J. W. Fort.

The article stated that Dr. J. M. Fort was the first doctor on record in that section, which was manifestly a mistake as Dr. J. M. Fort was born in 1828 and was a very small boy when his parents came from Tennessee to Texas and settled in what was then Red River county or district and afterwards was created into Bowie county.

DeKalb, near which settlement the elder Dr. Fort located, was the first thriving center in that section, and so important did it become that the congress of Texas, in January 1829, chartered the College of DeKalb and made it a grant of land. Dr. J. W. Fort, who was born in Tennessee in 1795 is said to have ridden horseback from Tennessee to Philadelphia when a young man and on arrival in the Quaker City sold his horse and took a course of medical lectures in the old University. He practiced in Tennessee until 1826 when he moved to Texas and practiced medicine in what is now Bowie county until his death in 1855. It was evidently this Dr. Fort to which the medical journal story had reference.

Dr. J. M. Fort was educated at the old McKenzie Institute near Clarksville and the high school at LaFayette, Arkansas. He read medicine under his father and afterwards attended and was graduated from Jefferson Medical college in Philadelphia, then one of the prominent medical schools of the country. Returning to Bowie county he practiced there, married, and in 1868 came to Paris. After twenty years practice of his profession here he retired and died some years later.

Dr. J. M. Fort was a man of much force of character and good education. After retiring from the practice he made a tour of the Holy Land and on his return published a book entitled "The Texas Doctor and the Arab Donkey," descriptive of his journeying through lands made historical by the Bible. He accumulated considerable property which he increased by wise investments and was for years looked on as one of the leading physicians not only in Paris but in this section of Texas.

When Dr. Fort began practice it was customary for physicians to advertise in the newspapers. That is to say, they kept a card standing and frequently referred to their special qualifications in certain diseases. Now few of them believe it is proper to even put their names and office address in a newspaper. It is another of the things that have been changed by time.

Diet and Health

By Logan Clendenning, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

It appears that we will have to give up the fish idea. The intellectual giants can stop eating whales. The latest studies show that the brain lives on sugar.

For many years physiologists have assumed that all tissues in the body utilize all the food stuffs in about equal proportions. That in other words, protein, fat and carbohydrates were used equally for energy by all parts of the body. The first suggestion that there was some selection that muscle satisfies its needs with fat and sugar alone.

Turning their attention to the brain, several investigators have been able to show that this organ uses nothing except sugar in performing its functions. Arterial blood going to the brain is much richer in sugar than the venous blood coming away from it. But there is no change in the fat and protein supply of the two streams of blood. The brain is the only organ we know about which does not need any fat.

People who have diabetes may feel happy to know that the brain uses sugar without requiring any insulin. It seems to be only the muscles which use insulin. So the diabetic patient, as far as our evidence goes, thinks just as well as anybody else.

Questions from Readers.
R. J. H.: "I believe you mentioned in your column once a remedy for treatment for Riggs disease, commonly called 'trench mouth.' Will you please repeat it?"

Answer: Strictly speaking, Riggs disease and trench mouth are not the same thing. Riggs disease is the name sometimes given to pyorrhea, which is an infection of the gums around the teeth from many different causes. Trench mouth is usually restricted to an infection of the gums with the germs known as "Vincent's infection." The treatment of Riggs disease is both mechanical and medical. The mechanical part of it is to free the teeth from tartar and incrustations and remove the source of infection between the gums and the teeth. The medical treatment is by various antiseptics and applications to the gums, and sometimes the use of emetine in cases where pyorrhea is due to infection with amoeba.

S. L.: "My left eye constantly tears: the lacrimal duct is obstructed. Would you advise leaving it as it is?"

Answer: I would not advise leaving it as it is because the condition is very annoying and treatment is, in most cases, successful. The treatment must be carried out by an oculist and consists of dilation of the lacrimal duct with a probe. It is a common occurrence and all oculists are familiar with the procedure.

J. A.: "Six years ago I had ulcerative colitis. I am better now but I wonder whether it is probable that these ulcers will turn cancerous."

Answer: There is no instance of the ulcers of ulcerative colitis turning into cancer.

TALKS WITH PARENTS

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

"Dear Mr. Myers: I have a little girl 21 months old. She has a very bad habit of having to be rocked to sleep. I have tried putting her in her bed and letting her 'cry it out' but in vain. She will cry for hours and her throat gets irritated. I have tried spanking her but she just cries harder, and when I finally give in and put her to sleep she moans all night. Could you please suggest some method I could use? Every one I know tells me that she should be put in her bed and should go to sleep by herself."

Answer: Perhaps most of the respectable grown-ups alive today were rocked to sleep, occasionally at least, when they were babies. Assuming this last statement to be a fact, it is no argument for rocking babies to sleep now; neither is it a good reason why a mother who has rocked her baby should grow panicky about it.

It is your problem, Mother. If you desire to go through this needless activity and give your child this unnecessary attention, I guess nobody else should worry whether you rock your child to sleep or not. When you think the matter through you probably will decide that it is not good for you nor for the child, to rock her to sleep.

Before you decide that she shall not be rocked to sleep count first the cost to you. Ask yourself whether you will be able to quit rocking her to sleep. Unless you are sure you can completely manage yourself, go on doing as you have done without remorse. Either be ready to stop rocking her absolutely or make no effort at correcting the problem at all.

To try out a plan of stopping, then to weaken after she has cried and sobbed, is only to torture the child and yourself. Pay the price and be done with it, if you would win. The child may cry the whole night through, even a second night, but finally you will win if you have the stuff in you.

Unless the child tries to climb out of bed I can think of no occasion for spanking her. Naturally the child will cry when denied the comforts afforded by rocking. Let it be her privilege to cry just as it is your privilege to cease to rock her. I never could see any sense in punishing a child for crying, in the first place. It might be well to have the door slightly ajar with a dim light on in the hall to make sure the child will not be annoyed by fear.

Now to mothers of younger infants: Never allow yourselves to think the child just once, or lie down beside him just once, or take him into bed with you just once if you do not wish to do so always. The child has more regard for precedent than a judge. With one or two indulgences, a bad habit may be formed which will cost weeks and months to break.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two pamphlets by Dr. Myers may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Garry C. Myers, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Punishments and Rewards," and "Fear."

PERSONAL ADVICE

By Virginia Lee

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am only 19 and married to someone I don't love. My husband is very good to me but he has a temper and is very jealous. He does not want me to go to dances. He goes somewhere by myself he says I'm gone to look for someone else and don't care for him."

"Before I met my husband I went with a boy that always told me he loved me, and I think he was the one for me. But my parents didn't want me to go with him because he wasn't my kind. I had a hard time giving him up. I always think of him and he says I still belong to him and he'll get me yet. I can stand and talk to him all day but when my husband comes near me I get mad and just feel like going some place and never coming back. So please advise me what to do. M. P. K."

Queer that your husband is jealous, isn't it, when you openly acknowledge that you love this other man? I would advise you to divorce your husband and marry this other man. I don't know of any way to overcome your love for him so quickly and effectually. It's hardly fair, either to live with a man feeling toward him as you do toward your husband.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl of 26 and in love with a boy of 24. He has often told me he loves me. We have been going to gether a year and a half and he has never mentioned marriage except as a joke.

"He has a good job. I am in school but I don't like it and would like to be married and have a family. He knows this because I have told him so.

"The only thing he ever says to me is how wonderful his mother is and how he loves her. She is a lovely person, but do you think a son should give up his life for his mother?"

"Do you think I ought to give him up and try to forget or do you think I ought to continue going with him and see if he will ever want me for his wife?"

MACK SMITH."

It is possible, of course, that your boy friend cares too deeply for his mother ever to marry. That does happen occasionally. He may be so happy with her at home that he has no desire to set up a home of his own.

If you are convinced that such is the case you had better break with him and go with someone else.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: 'Nappanese Blue Eyes' doesn't know many girls or else he associates with the wrong kind. Goodness knows there are plenty of girls who don't smoke or drink and do not like petting, and they sit at home and wait and hope for some boy who likes their type. I know for I'm one of them.

"Use your eyes, Nappanese Blue Eyes. There are lots of nice girls who'd like a boy friend.

"SEVENTEEN."

Them's my sentiments, Seventeen.

"He has a good job. I am in

Cotton States League Not To Run This Year

VICKSBURG, Miss., April 6. (P)—The Cotton States Baseball League will not operate this season. It was indicated Wednesday in a statement by Frank A. Scott, president, who telegraphed members suggesting keeping the organization intact but taking a year's "vacation."

The board of directors have been struggling several months to reorganize a six-club circuit but have only been able to tentatively bring five clubs into the loop, from which Jackson, Miss., withdrew this season to enter the New Southeastern league.

Efforts had been made to find assistance from the Monroe, La., club so that it might retain its franchise but officials of that city announced Wednesday night they had been unsuccessful in obtaining a higher class team to support them.

Clubs that had announced they were ready to open the season May 3 were Pine Bluff and El Dorado, Ark.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Baton Rouge, La., and Port Arthur, Tex., the latter a newcomer.

President Scott telegraphed the club presidents who comprise the board as follows:

"After a careful survey of the situation and close examination as to the conditions and finances of the clubs in the league, I do not think it possible to go through the season and would rather not start and fail to finish.

"I, therefore, suggest you keep the organization intact and take a vacation for this year. If you wish I will call a meeting to consider all angles of the case.

"Baton Rouge and Port Arthur have requested a meeting in their towns. Please advise."

dant, Al Skeen, pleaded not guilty to charges of burglary and was discharged on an instructed verdict because the search warrant had been lost.

Odus Hall and West Kennedy, charged with forgery, were assessed respectively. Earl Collier, pleading guilty to charges of transporting liquor, was assessed one year suspended sentence. J. B. James, pleading guilty to charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated, was assessed a thirty days suspended sentence and prohibited from driving a motor vehicle for a period of one hour—a mere technicality because conviction of this offense is followed automatically by the prohibition of driving for a period of time not to exceed two years.

Cases Carried Over
B. F. Mayberry, charged with the recent burglary of Lloyd Lillard's grocery store on Pine Bluff street, pleaded guilty to the charges and received a five years suspended sentence assessed by jury. Mayberry it was said, explained the delay by his statement the only food in his house for a wife and two children was flour, beans and lard.

The majority of the cases disposed of this week were cases carried over from the last term of Judge Blackburn's court.

JOHN MCGRAW TO OBSERVE HIS 59TH BIRTHDAY

Today Also Is 30th Anniversary of His Joining New York Giants

NEW YORK, April 6. (P)—John McGraw, firebrand of another and more colorful baseball day, will pass another milestone Thursday—his 59th birthday, and the 30th anniversary of the year of his coming to the New York Giants.

His hair is snow white now. Some but far from all of the belligerence of the fiery youngster who played third base sensationally for the famous old Baltimore Orioles has gone.

McGraw, heading into the new National league campaigns with one of the finest of his post-war teams, still shares recognition with Connie Mack as the peer of all managers. In 29 campaigns at the head of the Giants, McGraw has won ten pennants, three world championships and finished out of first division only twice. He alone has ever piloted a major league club to five successive pennants, 1921 through 1924.

McGraw's ambition in life was to study and practice law, but baseball caught him in Olean, N. Y., when he was only 17 years old. That was in the old Oil and Iron league, not far from his home town, Truxton, N. Y. He was anything but a sensation. The first five days he played at third base he contributed generally to five straight defeats for Olean.

Two years ago when McGraw, now part owner as well as manager of the Giants, signed a new five year contract, his annual salary was reported as $65,000.

the marketing of gasoline and other petroleum products.

Allred's announcement removing himself from the list of probable gubernatorial candidates left only Leut. Governor Edgar Witt's plans undetermined. It is generally understood that he has been considering a gubernatorial candidacy. Clint C. Small, Amarillo state senator, a candidate two years ago, has announced he will not run if Governor R. S. Sterling is a candidate for reelection. Governor Sterling still maintained his silence.

Meanwhile there are three announced candidates: Former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson of Austin; Harry Miller of Brady, a farmer; and Tom F. Hunter, Wichita Falls oil man. The Rev. Scott W. Hickey, Baptist fundamentalist pastor of Cleburne, who announced his candidacy several months ago, has withdrawn from the Democratic party primary. He said he would run as an independent Democrat in the November general election. Hunter is actively on the stump.

Leut. Satterwhite of Odessa, for fourteen years a member of the Texas legislature and former speaker of the house, has become a candidate for railroad commissioner. He is opposing C. V. Terrell chairman of the commission and five others as follows: Hubert Otis Johnson of Houston, Ray Holder of Lancaster, William D. Gargill of Brady, Roy I. Tennant of Austin and J. J. "Jack" Patterson of San Antonio.

Satterwhite, who had been reported considering aspiring to the railroad commission place held by Pat M. Neff, who announced he would resign to become president of Baylor University at Waco, said he did not expect Neff to resign his state office for probably a number of months. He said he was reasonably sure Neff would not quit before too late for candidates for the vacancy to enter the elections of this year.

Satterwhite said he saw in the railroad commission a place for "useful and worthwhile service to the people of Texas."

He said he favored regulation of buses and trucks operating over the public highways to the extent danger of traffic of all kinds upon the highways would be reduced to the lowest minimum possible "as well as to make bus and truck service responsible and reliable."

He stated that "failure on the part of the commission to initiate and enforce such rules and regulations as would have resulted in an orderly development of the East Texas oil pool lost to the state many millions of dollars in revenue, as well as millions to the land owners and operators in that great pool."

Buc Pitchers In Form
GALVESTON, April 6. (P)—A trio of Galveston pitchers hurled eighteen innings of baseball here Wednesday afternoon with only three hits charged against them. The regulars gained one hit off Hank Thormahlen in six innings and two off James Ryan in three innings. While Ryan held the rookies hitless for three innings and Joe Galdoski, rookie hurler pitched six innings of hitless ball to end the day.

Saints Down Cats
FORT WORTH, April 6. (P)—The St. Paul Saints of the American Association bunched their hits in the fourth and eighth innings to defeat the Fort Worth Panthers of the Texas league 7 to 3 here Wednesday. Bill Steineke and Ulmont Baker hit home runs for the Panthers only runs.

Yale Golfers Mow Down Fees

PINEHURST, N. C., April 6. (P)—College golfers from Yale mowed down all opposition Wednesday in the opening round of match play in the annual North-South amateur tournament here.

Three members of this year's Eli team and one from last year's intercollegiate championship outfit advanced to the second round. M. P. Warner, Pine Orchard, Conn., sprang the surprise of the day by downing Chandler Harper, Virginia Beach, Va., co-medalist in 1930 the Virginia state champion 2 and 1.

Another surprise was the defeat of Alan Smith, University of North Carolina sophomore and one of the favorites, by J. E. Parker, Jr., Orange, N. J., a Yale linkman, by a one up margin.

S. W. Noyes, Jr., Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., captain of the Eli's downed J. R. Lenahan, Providence, R. I., 2 and 1.

PHAR LAP WILL BE SENT HOME

Great Red Gelding Will Be Mounted In This Country Immediately

MENLO PARK, Cal., April 6. (P)—Phar Lap, monarch of the Australian turf in his lifetime, is to be sent home to perpetuate the memory of one of the greatest thoroughbreds ever reared under the southern cross.

The great red gelding, whose untimely death here Tuesday stunned the racing world, is to be mounted in this country. A San Francisco taxidermist started on the work Wednesday.

Although collo generally had been accepted as the cause of Phar Lap's death, rumors flew thick and fast Wednesday. In some quarters it was hinted the horse had died from poisoning placed in his feed bag.

Newspaper men were told Wednesday by David J. Davis, the owner of the horse, valued at $500,000, he definitely had accepted the first findings of the veterinarians.

Two governments, New Zealand and Australia, were said to have requested that Phar Lap's remains be shipped there. The famed horse was foaled in New Zealand and ran most of his races in Australia. Davis has made no decision in the matter. The mounting work will be done in about a month.

Phar Lap with a victory in the Agua Caliente, Mex., handicap, March 20, added $50,000 to his winnings and brought his total earnings to $322,750, within striking distance of the world's record of $376,750, piled up by the American thoroughbred, Sun Beau.

and an off-hand estimate would place the cost at $1,500. On motion of Alderman Sam Payne the request was denied on account of the cost.

Alderman Ben Smith said there was a request for parking instead of planking on east side of the Plaza, and on motion of Alderman Gill that a committee be named to investigate, the mayor appointed the whole council. Alderman Payne thought the committee should also ask if parking was desired on the north side of the Plaza, but this was not included in the motion, the other aldermen evidently believing that such things should be given attention when and as they were presented.

This completed the business and the council adjourned.

FROG GRID COACH LIKES MOST OF NEW GAME RULES

Objects Only to New Definition of When Ball Is Dead

Special to The News
FORT WORTH, April 6.—With the exception of the rule which states that the ball will be called dead when any part of the ball-carrier's body except his hands or feet touch the ground, Coach Francis Schmidt is well pleased with the new football rules adopted in a recent meeting of the national rules committee.

He was of the opinion that the rule eliminating the fling tackle and block and the ordinance prohibiting linemen from using their hands on opponents would be loosely interpreted in this section.

Likes Sub Rule

The Horned Frog grid teacher was especially pleased with the regulation which permits a player to be substituted for and returned to the game in any subsequent period. In his opinion, this will eliminate the coaches' playing a star who has a minor injury or who is temporarily exhausted; however it will tend to increase quarterbacking from the sidelines.

Coach Schmidt was most bitterly opposed to the rule that kills the ball when the ball-carrier falls down. "As the rule stands now," he thought the ball-carrier were in an open field without an opponent near him, if any part of his body except his hands or feet touched the ground he could not get up and run. In many cases the ball-carrier falls down on a goal line play. This rule would call the touchdown back even if he went across. In my opinion, it would have been much better to have given all four officials a whistle and let any of them call the ball dead when the ball-carrier fell to the ground in the grasp of an opponent.

Scores Officiating
"The object of the rule is to eliminate piling on. Officials are paid $50 each to officiate games and the referee is the only one permitted to carry a whistle on the field. Under the present conditions the referee instructs the field judge to declare the ball dead in his mind and give him the signal by raising his hands. Of course the players can't be watching the field judge all the time to see when he is going to raise his hands nor can they 'hear' him make this gesture. Thus, if the ball-carrier is not stopped cold, the players tackle him in order to make sure that he stops. If the field judge could declare the ball dead by blowing a whistle, the players would not pile on and in this way the menace would be eliminated. In order to be sure that the rule was respected, a heavy penalty could be inflicted for infraction of it."

Coach Schmidt does not believe that the rule about the flying block would hurt the game very much. "I don't believe an official would enforce the rule to the letter if the blocker left his feet right at the player, and as a general rule when a blocker throws himself three or four yards, he misses his man anyway."

The Story of an Unemployed Girl

CHAPTER 27

Howard Marsh wore one of the yellow rosebuds on his coat lapel and the remainder of the bouquet clustered in an Italian pottery vase on the corner of his big glass-topped desk nearest Lillian.

Lillian, after nearly a whole day of sleep, felt much better than she had that morning. She had come to the hotel so tired she fell across her bed and slept the exhausted sleep of a played-out child.

At noon she had awakened and zone about taking off her flame-colored chiffon and the torn velvet wrap. She thought a warm bath would freshen her, but it only made her sleepier. She crawled back in bed.

So, when she knocked on Howard Marsh's office door it was nearly five.

Howard Marsh smiled expansively. He got up when she came in and made the motion of pulling up a chair for her.

As she sat down he slid the vase of yellow rosebuds on its long stem and took out one, toyed with its long stem and thorns and foliage until all but two inches of the stem had been twisted off between his thumb and forefinger, then fastened the blossom on his dark brown lapel.

They had passed meaningless words during those few minutes. Lillian bit her lip and tried her best to keep the anger she felt from glistening in her eyes.

What if she flared at him? What was there to be flared—except the satisfaction of flaring?

Sherron had only given her five dollars last night! Five dollars! It had cost her one to ride to the hotel.

She would have to have a job... she would have to have more money. Howard Marsh could assist her. If only he would.

As she had decided over and over again in her room she decided again there in his office—she had everything to gain, nothing to lose, by being pleasant.

She flashed her smile at Howard.

There was nothing Howard Marsh liked better than a pretty girl. A young and pretty girl. He liked to look at one.

Lillian had a lovely figure. A pretty face. A natural beauty.

"Well," he said, "how'd it come out?"

"What?" she said.

"Last night—"

"Oh—I thought perhaps Mr. Sherron would hand in a report on me today."

"He has to sleep all day, you know. Haven't talked with him yet—but you had a big time, didn't you? Your certainly were the belle of the ball when I ducked out—"

"But, why—why did you, Mr. Marsh?"

Lillian unconsciously moved to the edge of her chair. Wouldn't he defend himself... clear himself somehow of the hurt he had caused her. She hoped he could... would...

He was busy lighting a cigarette. And he managed so he choked a little on the smoke.

"Oh—you child!" he said, amusement over his good looking face.

"Why? Because you were having a grand time—being rushed and all that sort of thing. Why, I was just going along as your chaperone don't you see? I ducked out and gave the others a chance. Why, you—"

Lillian turned her head quickly. She buried her even white teeth in her lip. But—

"Why—why, what's the matter? child?" he asked, surprised. He was standing by her chair, bending over her, his hand on her shoulder.

"Look up here. Look at me. You—you're not crying—"

She couldn't keep the silly tears back. They rushed out and sparkled in her thick dark lashes.

"What, what's the matter? Did something go wrong last night? Tell me. Tell me—"

"Why didn't you tell me? Why didn't you tell me you were hiring me—like that?" she burst out.

"Oh, I thought you'd get a great kick out of being a hostess. I thought I got the idea over to you rather well, without actually telling you what it was all about. You seemed to get the idea. And you seemed to be having a good time—"

"But I'm not a child. I—you might have told me—"

"Well, you told me you needed some money. And I knew that was a nice place for a young girl—pretty young girl—" he looked coaxingly and admiringly at her then—"to have a job. It's less like work than most anything else an untrained girl would find in New York."

She listened, struggling for poise. Tucked at her hair and pressed her hat closer to her head.

Howard sat on the side of his desk quite near her.

There dawned on her that there was something actually paternal in his attitude toward her. And it made her a little ashamed that she had been guilty of a romantic attachment.

Lillian moved her chair ever so slightly away from him.

"Oh, I can't tell you how much I appreciate your—your kindness," she said, forcing a friendliness into her dark eyes, beautifully bright from tears and not at all red as some girls' would have been from crying.

"I'm sure you meant to be kind—but it was just so different from anything I'd ever experienced... dancing with men, being nice,

Markets

Dallas Produce

DALLAS, April 6. (P)—Poultry and eggs: hens, pound 10 to 12; young chickens, pound 10 to 15; turkeys, pound 6 to 14; guinea, dozen 2.40 to 5.00; geese, pound 6 to 7; eggs, dozen 8 to 10; packing butter, pound 7 to 8; ducks, pound 8 to 10. Paris prices corresponding.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, April 6. (P)—Cotton was moderately active Wednesday, prices being governed mainly by the fluctuations in the stock market. After opening 6 to 9 points down the market closed barely steady showing net losses for the day of 11 to 13 points.

The market opened easy owing to lower cables.

As New York opened even lower than New Orleans and stocks at the start were weak prices eased off on liquidation and general selling. May dropping to 6.04, July to 6.20 and Oct. to 6.42, down 12 to 13 points from Tuesday's close.

Later in the morning as stocks improved somewhat, the market rallied owing to some trade buying and covering and before noon July traded up to 6.27 and Oct. to 6.45, up 7 points from the earlier lows.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, April 6. (P)—An opening decline in cotton Wednesday was followed by partial recoveries on trade buying and covering but prices eased again in the later trading when stocks showed renewed weakness.

The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 10 to 14 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 7 to 11 points, and active months sold about 10 to 14 points net lower during the first few minutes under liquidation and scattered selling.

The lower prices brought in a somewhat more active trade demand and the market stiffened around middle following rallies in stocks and grain. October contracts sold up from 6.44 to 6.54, while July advanced to 6.31 or back to Tuesday's closing quotations.

Trading was quiet during the greater part of the day and the market seemed sensitive to small orders either way.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, April 6. (P)—Except for a final quick dip on Kansas reports of showers, grain markets showed a decided tendency to go up most of the time Wednesday.

The general upward bent of wheat was largely a result of cumulative effects of the March zero wave and of ensuring drought, together with two weeks of dust storm over big sections of domestic winter crop territory.

Wheat closed nervous, the same as Tuesday's finish, 1-4 corn 1-4 to 1-4 off to 2 shade advance, oats 1-8 to 3-8 down, and provisions varying from 17 cents setback to a rise of 5 cents.

Closing indemnities, wheat, May 54 3-8 to 1-2; 56 7-8 to 57; July 57 to 57 1-8, 59 5-8 to 3-4; Sept. 59 1-4, 61 7-8, Corn, May 34 5-8 to 3-4, 35 5-8; July 38 1-4, 39 1-8; Sept. 40 1-8 to 1-4, 40 7-8 to 41.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 6. (P)—Stocks ran into heavy weather at the beginning and end of Wednesday's market. They succeeded in riding out the early storm of selling but another squall broke and for the sixth consecutive day prices averaged into a new low trough.

Overnight offerings brought declines of 1 to 3 points during the first fifteen minutes, but the market rallied, helped, no doubt, by Secretary Mills' statement on taxes before the senate finance committee. Although trading turned dull, early losses of 1 to 3 points had been somewhat more than recovered by the beginning of the last hour when quotations turned abruptly downward, accompanied by an increase in volume. Net losses of a point or two in common stocks were rather general, but many preferred issues showed greater weakness. Sales totaled 2,941,656, the largest turnover since February 19.

Fort Worth Livestock

FORT WORTH, April 6. (P)—(U. S. D. A.)—Hogs: 1,600; market steady to ten lower; truck top 2.90; mixed weight rail butchers 3.80; better grades 175 to 250 pound truck hogs 3.75 to 3.85; packing sows 3.60 to 3.75; stocker pigs 2.50.

Cattle, 2,600, including 600 calves; slaughter steers range 4.25 to 5.75; fed steers 5.50 to 7.00; plainer grades 4.25 to 5.60; grassers at 4.50; slaughter yearlings 4.75 to 5.60; fat cows 2.60; butcher grades 2.50 to 7.50; low cutter sorts 75 to 1.50; bulls scarce; heavy calves 4.75 to 5.00; plainer grades 4.25 down, good weaners up to 6.00.

Sheep, 8,000; market slow, spring lambs and old crop lambs steady to 25 lower; most bids 25 lower; aged fat weathers 25 lower; spring lambs 6.00 to 7.50; shorn fat lambs 4.75.
